Four Up-and-Coming Talents Shaping the Future of Entertainment

The allure of Hollywood often highlights seasoned stars, but behind the scenes, a new generation of talent is emerging, prepared to carry forward the industry's legacy of innovation and authenticity. Among these promising individuals are Ian Chen and Josslyn Banh, two rising stars mentored by filmmaker and visionary Victor Migalchan. Through platforms such as The Real Deal of Hollywood, Life Academy, and OnAir, Ian and Josslyn are refining their skills, gaining valuable insights, carving their own paths in the competitive world of entertainment and meeting well established and new talents.

Created by Victor Migalchan, The Real Deal of Hollywood is more than just a show—it's a platform for aspiring talent to learn the nuances of the entertainment industry. Reflecting on its purpose, Migalchan shares, "This is not just about providing exposure; it's about cultivating skills, fostering confidence, and building a foundation for long-term success in Hollywood." As the show moves into its second season, Ian Chen and Josslyn Banh are stepping into the spotlight as hosts, bringing their unique perspectives and talents to the forefront. Season 2 opened with compelling interviews featuring Miss California International winners Eunice Cintron and Taira Gosteva. These episodes not only showcased the inspiring journeys of these women but also highlighted Ian and Josslyn's growth as thoughtful and engaging hosts.

During their podcast interviews on The Real Deal of Hollywood, Ian and Josslyn connected deeply with Eunice Cintron and Taira Gosteva, discovering shared values and aspirations. Their conversations ranged from education and healthcare to work-life balance and Hollywood dreams. These meaningful discussions underscored their mutual passion for empowerment, storytelling, and inspiring others through their respective platforms.

At just 15 years old, Ian Chen is already proving himself as a multifaceted talent. A rising but already accomplished actor, singer, and competitive figure skater, Ian's journey is driven by a relentless curiosity and a passion for making an impact. Beyond his artistic pursuits, Ian is deeply interested in law, robotics, and debate, areas that reflect his analytical mind and drive for excellence.

Ian's involvement in The Real Deal of Hollywood is one of many platforms where his talents shine. As a host, he brings intelligence and empathy, skillfully navigating conversations that uncover compelling narratives. His role, together with Josslyn Banh, in the upcoming documentary film Heritage takes this a step further, as he embarks on a profound learning journey to explore the experiences and wisdom of the Jewish community, particularly children of Holocaust survivors and sharing with his peers. His research has also expanded to the Armenian and Cambodian genocides, deepening his understanding of resilience, culture, and history.

Josslyn Banh, a rising and already accomplished actress, singer, and golfer, has been captivating audiences with her charisma and determination. As a finalist on both Life Academy and OnAir TV shows, she has demonstrated her versatility across entertainment mediums. Her experience in three pilots and commercials, including for Mercedes-Benz, showcases her ability to connect with diverse audiences.

Josslyn's journey is defined by her passion for education and empowering youth. Partnering with the Small Business Administration, she is actively promoting business education among teenagers, equipping them with tools to navigate the modern economy. As a host on The Real Deal of Hollywood, Josslyn's thoughtful and authentic style creates space for guests to share their stories, inspiring viewers and amplifying impactful messages.

Her involvement in the Heritage documentary further reflects her commitment to meaningful storytelling. Learning from Holocaust survivors' children and exploring broader histories of genocide, Josslyn's dedication to understanding humanity's struggles and triumphs is a testament to her depth and empathy.

As Miss California International 2025, Eunice Cintron brings a unique blend of passion, resilience, and commitment to community service. A dedicated advocate for mental health awareness, Eunice's journey is rooted in her belief in the power of kindness, confidence, and faith. Her candid conversation with Ian and Josslyn on The Real Deal of Hollywood offered a glimpse into her world—her work with underserved communities, her role as a leader within her church, and her mission to inspire others to embrace their potential.

Eunice's dedication to serving others resonated deeply with Ian and Josslyn, who share a commitment to using their platforms to create meaningful change. Their conversations explored ways to uplift youth, foster connections, and bridge gaps between diverse communities.

First runner-up in Miss California International, Taira Gosteva embodies grace, ambition, and a drive to make a difference. With a strong focus on healthcare, education for children, and the arts, Taira is passionate about creating a positive impact through her work. Her dream of integrating nursing with digital and AI healthcare solutions reflects her forward-thinking approach to addressing modern challenges.

On The Real Deal of Hollywood, Taira's dialogue with Ian and Josslyn revealed their shared interest in education and storytelling. They connected over the importance of empowering young minds and using their respective platforms to spotlight critical issues. Taira's enthusiasm for Hollywood and the arts mirrored Ian and Josslyn's passion for acting, creating a sense of camaraderie and shared purpose.

Both Ian and Josslyn credit Victor Migalchan's mentorship as a transformative force in their development. Under his guidance, they are learning not only the intricacies of the entertainment business but also the importance of discipline, professionalism, and staying true to their values.

Migalchan's philosophy emphasizes the blend of creativity and business acumen, empowering his mentees to succeed in a competitive industry while maintaining authenticity. "Hollywood is about more than fame," says Migalchan. "It's about persistence, passion, and a vision that goes beyond yourself. Ian and Josslyn are embodying these values while learning to amplify the voices of others through their work." Ian Chen and Josslyn Banh's contributions to The Real Deal of Hollywood and the Heritage documentary mark the beginning of impactful careers that blend creativity with purpose. They are not only rising stars in their respective fields but also advocates for education, history, and human connection.

As The Real Deal of Hollywood prepares to take on red-carpet events and expand its reach, Ian and Josslyn are poised to lead the platform to new heights. Their meaningful connections with Eunice Cintron and Taira Gosteva demonstrate the power of shared values and mutual inspiration, proving that collaboration is key to success.

Victor Migalchan's vision for Hollywood is clear: "we build a future that shines brighter by discovering and empowering the new talent. I was impressed by the progress Ian Chen, Josslyn Banh showed. Now with discovering new and talented Taira, Eunice and Albina made us all very excited. This is what our communities and Hollywood needs: new, well educated, charismatic talents to guide our industry and make it better. Greatness becomes great when it is shared and it is my mission to help these talents shine."

It is a part of this journey, that the future is unfolding, one story at a time.
